Changing Lenses: Restorative Justice for Our Times, 25th Anniversary Edition By Howard Zehr

Does the criminal justice system actually help victims and offenders? What does justice look like for those who have been harmed? For those who have done harm? Twenty-five years after it was first published, Changing Lenses by Howard Zehr remains the classic text of the restorative justice field.

Now with valuable author updates on the changing landscape of restorative justice and a new section of resources for practitioners and teachers, Changing Lenses offers a framework for understanding crime, injury, accountability, and healing from a restorative perspective.

Uncovering widespread assumptions about crime, the courts, retributive justice, and the legal process, Changing Lenses offers provocative new paradigms and proven alternatives for public policy and judicial reform.

What s New in the Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Edition:

-Author updates of terminology, paradigms, and recommended reading

-Foreword by restorative justice practitioner Sujatha Baliga

-New resources for teachers, facilitators, and practitioners

Editorial Review

Review

This book will change how you think about wrongdoing and justice and mercy. --Leymah Gbowee, winner of the 2011 Nobel Peace Prize

Maybe one day we ll integrate some of the principles of civil law into criminal justice, as Howard Zehr advises in his book Changing Lenses. --Sister Helen Prejean, C.S.J., in Dead Man Walking

This book calls for a rethinking of crime and justice and offers a bold new direction. Readers should be aware, however, that it isn t a handy little volume with simplistic assessments and catchy slogans. The author challenges the definitions and assumptions that color our thinking and shape public policy on crime and justice. --CBA Marketplace

From the Back Cover

Our criminal justice system is in crisis.

Courts damage victims and offenders alike. Politicians and the press manipulate crimes to their advantage. Trials become pitched dramas of guilt and innocence while ignoring deep needs for healing and restitution, safety and community.

So what do justice and accountability look like for those who have been harmed? For those who have done harm? How might a biblical vision of shalom and forgiveness change the lens through which we view crime and justice? Twenty-five years after it was first published, Changing Lenses by Howard Zehr remains the classic text of the restorative justice field. Now with valuable author updates on victim-offender conferencing and circle processes and a new section of resources and recommended reading, Changing Lenses shatters our assumptions about crime and offers provocative new paradigms for public policy and judicial reform.

Think you understand crime, the courts, and what real justice looks like? Changing Lenses asks you to think again.

About the Author

Howard Zehr is widely regarded as the grandfather of restorative justice. His work includes trainings and consultations on restorative justice, victim-offender conferencing, judicial reform, and other criminal justice matters, and he has had particular influence in the United States, Brazil, Japan, Jamaica, Northern Ireland, Britain, the Ukraine, and New Zealand, which has restructured their juvenile justice system into a family-focused, restorative approach.
